HAMILTON FRASER INSURANCE LAUNCHES NEW 6 MONTH POLICY

Hamilton Fraser Insurance has launched a new 6 month Medical Malpractice Insurance Policy for practitioners who want to trial the practice of aesthetic treatments.

The new 6 month policy will enable practitioners to consider starting an aesthetic practice without the cost of a full year's commitment. If after this period the practitioner decides they wish to continue with aesthetic treatments, they can renew the policy for a further 12 month period.

This offer is only available to practices that cover botulinum toxin and temporary dermal filler treatments and will only cover work performed in the UK.

Eddie Hooker, Managing Director, for Hamilton Fraser Insurance said "as the aesthetic industry continues to grow and evolve we want to be able to support it. Our statistics show that around 30% of all new entrants into the aesthetic arena decide that it is not for them, and they decide this pretty quickly! Previously they have been tied into the costs of an annual contract. This new 6 month policy will allow practitioners to trial aesthetic work before incorporating it into their daily practice."
